FRENCH WAR HERO IN URGENT APPEAL TO U. S.

CLEMENCEAU STIRS FRENCH NATION TODAY

DEAN OF FRENCH STATESMEN WRITES OPEN LETTER TO PRES. COOLIDGE

ASKS FOR TOLERATION ON THE PART OF THE FRENCH DEBT

By A. L. BRADFORD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Georges Clemenceau, dean of French statesmen, has stirred the nation by his open letter to President Coolidge, in which he asked for toleration on the part of the French debt, declaring that France was "not for sale," and would not sacrifice freedom for the payment of debts.

"The letter is really a manifesto to America," today's Petite Journal said. "He has broken his six years' silence not to interfere in a domestic squabble, but to speak of France's interests to the American people."

The Journal Des Debats in a leading editorial said that "Clemenceau desired merely to throw light on all aspects of the problems of debts."

The Clemenceau letter was written by the 85-year-old "Tiger" from his seaside home in Vendee. It follows:

"Mr. President: There has arisen between three great countries, allied and associated powers of the war, differences of opinion regarding the settlement of accounts, which threaten seriously to affect the future of the civilized world.

"Everywhere technicians of finance and diplomacy are at work. A technician is often a man who likes to isolate a problem from those in the co-ordination of which he is engaged.

"All things are linked in public affairs, and he who seeks to remain exclusively in his domain exposes himself to discover too late that he is overwhelmed.

"Between the United States and England, between England and France, between France and the United States the same questions exist in identical form and I see that solutions tried out or preparations for solution have not created the proper state of mind in the interested countries.

"We are debtors; you are creditors. It would seem that it is purely a question of the cash register.

"Are there not other considerations to take into account?

"The European policy of England has consisted so far in holding in check peoples of the continent and lining them up one against the other for the proper moment of intervention.

"I am confident that the eyes of the man in the street are opening, that he is seeing more clearly today.

"It is to America that the anxiety of France is principally turned.

"You press for payment. The debt is not a debt of commerce, but a debt of war, and you know, as do we, that our coffers are empty.

"Under such circumstances a debtor signs notes. Also that is what you ask of us. Yet again must we believe in a cash settlement on the day fixed. But the secret of the comedy is that the question here is only of fictitious maturities to arrange a loan with safe mortgages on our territory, like Turkey.

"If that, Mr. President, is necessary, I frankly tell you that we can never accept. France is not for sale, even to her friends. We inherited her independent and independent we will leave her. Ask yourself after President Monroe if you seek any other fate for the American continent."

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Georges Clemenceau's appeal to President Coolidge not to allow the French debt to be treated as a monetary debt can in no way affect the U. S. attitude toward the French obligation to us, it was indicated by a spokesman of the White House. Although the president has not yet had official cognizance of Clemenceau's letter, he is understood to take the position the debt settlement is a closed incident as regards the United States.

(Editor's Note—The reports of disorders in Russia are being received by roundabout channels in numerous European capitals and relayed to the United Press by correspondents in those capitals. Faithful troops were reported driven from Odessa and are now entrenched near a railroad station outside the city.

The story said the mutinous regiments are the 20th, 25th and 30th, led by Trotsky's former adjutant, Potemkin, and that casualties in Odessa disorders were high.

A conflicting and likewise unconfirmed report said the Chita had arrested General Luis Visib, but that soldiers and officers were not arrested.

The Irkutsk garrison in Siberia was reported to have joined Leon Trotsky and disarmed faithful troops under General Trublin. It was reported that Gregory Zinovieff, head of the third internationale, was injured when a bomb was thrown at him in his home. According to the story, arrests and deportations are continuing in Moscow. It was said faithful troops were guarding Stalin.

NEGLECT OF DUTY CHARGE AGAINST POLICE CHIEF PINE

CLAIM MELROSE PARK, ILL., CHIEF DELINQUENT IN ASSISTANCE

FAILS TO AID CHICAGO AUTHORITIES TO LOCATE THREE KIDNAPERS

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Charges of neglect of duty were to be filed against Chief of Police Pine of Melrose Park, a suburb, today, because he failed to aid Chicago authorities in seeking three youths, who kidnapped three 15-year-old Chicago girls and attacked two of them in a forest in Melrose Park. The girls' names were withheld.

The girls, who, with their 16-year-old boy escorts were returning from a dance, accepted a "lift" toward Chicago from the trio. Instead of driving them to the city, the strangers drove to a secluded spot along a river bank and while one of their number held the young escorts off, attacked the girls. During the excitement, one of the girls and her escort, Michael Romanelli, escaped. Romanelli said he recognized two of the assailants; one, he said, was a paroled reformatory inmate. Chicago authorities last night sought the attackers, and although Chief Pine promised assistance, he would give none, Captain Griffith Goldberg charged.

ST. PAUL PREPARES TO WELCOME THE FORD AIRPLANES

SECOND ANNUAL EDEL FORD TROPHY COMMERCIAL PLANE TOUR

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT 24 PLANES TO ARRIVE ON SCHEDULE TIME

St. Paul, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Officials and citizens of St. Paul were ready to welcome the second annual Edel Ford trophy commercial airplane tour members.

Weather conditions early today were somewhat unfavorable, due to heavy clouds which shrouded the sun, and which threatened rain at any moment.

Officials, however, expressed confidence this would not interfere with the successful landing of the 24 planes which are scheduled to arrive here shortly after noon.

Chief of Police E. J. Murnane, has directed every available police officer to handle the 50,000 persons who are expected to crowd the municipal airport to welcome the fliers.

Extensive arrangements have been made to care for the comfort of the visitors and all possible precautions have been taken to avoid accidents in landing.

The north side of the airport field has been roped off to provide parking space for thousands of automobiles. The planes will land on the south side, and then will be taxied to the north side of the field so that spectators may view them.

This afternoon and Tuesday the visiting pilots will demonstrate their machines in stunt flights over the field.

The tour is to resume Wednesday morning when they will take off for Des Moines, Iowa.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 9.—Twenty-four airplanes dedicated to the furtherance of commercial aviation started from Hamilton Field here today on the fourth leg of the second annual commercial plane reliability tour. Accompanied by Ernest Greenwood, special representative of Herbert Hoover, the planes and pilots arrived here yesterday to pay homage to Milwaukee's Court of Neptune pageant.

The planes are expected to arrive in St. Paul some time this afternoon.

St. Paul, Aug. 9.—The first of the 39 airplanes participating in the Edel Ford reliability tour to arrive here today was a travel air machine piloted by Walter Beech.

It was No. 2 in the tourist list, but was sixth to leave Milwaukee this morning. The plane left Milwaukee at 10:21 A. M. and arrived here at 12:29 P. M., taking two hours and 19 minutes for the trip.

Pilot Beech reported that he ran into a bad storm and for 25 miles was in rain, while near Camp Douglas, Wis.

Two passengers, Brice H. Goldsborough, aerial navigation expert, and Richard R. Blyth, chairman of the Aeronautic Association of America, and vice president of the New York chapter, National Aeronautic Association, were with him.

The second plane to arrive was a Curtis Oriole, piloted by Capey Jones, which left Milwaukee at 10:04 and arrived here at 12:45 P. M.

The third was a Mercury, piloted by Mimmert. He left Milwaukee at 10:03 and arrived here at 12:46 P. M.

Prior to the arrival of the first plane, ships of the 109th observation squadron flew over the field, and for more than a quarter of an hour entertained spectators there with demonstrations of army formations.

Despite threatening rain from low, dark clouds, a huge throng was on hand to greet the reliability fliers as they landed. As the day progressed these were augmented by thousands more and optimistic forecasts of local officials were that more than 50,000 persons will have congregated at the airport before the last plane arrives.

LORD KITCHENER'S TRAGIC FATE NEVER SOLVED

AMERICAN LEGION AND AUXILIARY AT MANKATO

STATE CONVENTION OPENS THERE FOR THREE DAYS' SESSION

IN POINT OF ATTENDANCE MEETING EXPECTED TO BREAK ALL RECORDS

Mankato, Minn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—With more than 2,000 American Legion and auxiliary members already here, Mankato's populace was up early greeting new arrivals for the state convention of the Legion which opened here today for a three day session.

Officials believe the present convention will eclipse all other state meets of the Legion in point of attendance.

The executive committee meeting at noon in the headquarters at the Saulpaugh hotel Sunday took exception to the "spreading of propaganda tending to disrupt plans for the Paris National Legion convention in 1927."

In confirmation of this stand, the committee voted unanimous approval of the Gopher delegation's plans calling for attendance of several thousand men at the Paris meeting.

The French people are friendly toward the American soldier, reports received from representatives of the American Legion in Paris, said, according to Eddie Lindell, Minnesota department adjutant and Paris convention plans chairman.

Lindell said stories which had been broadcast saying the Paris convention might be cancelled because of the unfriendly situation in France were "without the slightest foundation."

KILLINGS LAST WEEK IN PROVINCE OF GUADALAJARA

ENRAGED CATHOLICS IN CHURCH OF JESUS STAB AND KILL POLICE CHIEF

DISCLOSED PRESENCE IN CHURCH BY SHOUTING "LONG LIVE THE CONSTITUTION"

By A. W. FOLGER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Aug. 9.—A United Press correspondent, touring cities and towns of the interior, confirmed scanty press reports received all throughout the past week regarding killings at Guadalajara, one of the strongholds of Catholicism in Mexico.

Enraged Catholics in the Church of Jesus stabbed and killed Luis Gonzales, chief of the secret service police, last Monday night. It is learned, when he disclosed his presence in the church by shouting: "Long live the Constitution."

During the night, Catholics guarded the church, demanding that all approaching it cry "Long live Christ, our King."

Those refusing to give the cry, whether men or women, were beaten with sticks and stoned. Since then scenes of that nature have been a nightly occurrence about the church, with little interference offered by either the police or the military.

Troops remained in control of churches in several interior towns yesterday as a precaution against outbreaks, but the day passed without disorders, according to brief early messages.

It was reported from Pengango, in the state of Guanajuato late yesterday that citizens there were refusing to pay taxes to the city council and had appealed to officials of the League of Religious Defense for support.

A similar condition of opposition was reported from the towns of Zamora and Zapacupa in the state of Michoacan.

Newspaper reports said the Indian populations of towns in Michoacan and other states are supporting the boycott strongly, but that it will not alter the situation greatly as the buying power of the Indian groups is slight.

While the faithful of Mexico City attended prayer services of the Catholic church yesterday, the schismatic church remained practically deserted.

Pine City, Minn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Mistaking his daughter Elsie Lucille, 3, for an animal in the chicken yard of his farm near here, William Kokleppel shot and almost instantly killed the child, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

Kokleppel said he had recently found several dead chickens, indicating some animal prowling about the chicken coop at night.

Hearing a disturbance near the chicken yard Sunday morning Kokleppel took his shotgun and started to investigate, spying a small white object near the hen house at which he fired his gun.

The full charge entered the abdomen of the little girl and she died shortly afterward. It is believed she was walking in her sleep.

ST. PAUL PREPARES TO WELCOME THE FORD AIRPLANES

SECOND ANNUAL EDEL FORD TROPHY COMMERCIAL PLANE TOUR

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT 24 PLANES TO ARRIVE ON SCHEDULE TIME

St. Paul, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Officials and citizens of St. Paul were ready to welcome the second annual Edsel Ford trophy commercial airplane tour members.

Weather conditions early today were somewhat unfavorable, due to heavy clouds which shrouded the sun, and which threatened rain at any moment.

Officials, however, expressed confidence this would not interfere with the successful landing of the 24 planes which are scheduled to arrive here shortly after noon.

Chief of Police E. J. Murnane, has directed every available police officer to handle the 50,000 persons who are expected to crowd the municipal airport to welcome the fliers.

Extensive arrangements have been made to care for the comfort of the visitors and all possible precautions have been taken to avoid accidents in landing.

The north side of the airport field has been roped off to provide parking space for thousands of automobiles. The planes will land on the south side, and then will be taxied to the north side of the field so that spectators may view them.

This afternoon and Tuesday the visiting pilots will demonstrate their machines in stunt flights over the field.

The tour is to resume Wednesday morning when they will take off for Des Moines, Iowa.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 9.—Twenty-four airplanes dedicated to the furtherance of commercial aviation started from Hamilton Field here today on the fourth leg of the second annual commercial plane reliability tour. Accompanied by Ernest Greenwood, special representative of Herbert Hoover, the planes and pilots arrived here yesterday to pay homage to Milwaukee's Court of Neptune pageant.

The planes are expected to arrive in St. Paul some time this afternoon.

St. Paul, Aug. 9.—The first of the 39 airplanes participating in the Edsel Ford reliability tour to arrive here today was a travel air machine piloted by Walter Beech.

It was No. 2 in the tourist list, but was sixth to leave Milwaukee this morning. The plane left Milwaukee at 10:21 A. M. and arrived here at 12:29 P. M., taking two hours and 19 minutes for the trip.

Pilot Beech reported that he ran into a bad storm and for 25 miles was in rain, while near Camp Douglas, Wis.

Two passengers, Brice H. Goldsborough, aerial navigation expert, and Richard R. Blyth, chairman of the Aeronautic Association of America, and vice president of the New York chapter, National Aeronautic Association, were with him.

The second plane to arrive was a Curtis Oriole, piloted by Casey Jones, which left Milwaukee at 10:04 and arrived here at 12:45 P. M.

The third was a Mercury, piloted by Mimmert. He left Milwaukee at 10:03 and arrived here at 12:46 P. M.

Prior to the arrival of the first plane, ships of the 109th observation squadron flew over the field, and for more than a quarter of an hour entertained spectators there with demonstrations of army formations.

Despite threatening rain from low, dark clouds, a huge throng was on hand to greet the reliability fliers as they landed. As the day progressed these were augmented by thousands more and optimistic forecasts of local officials were that more than 50,000 persons will have congregated at the airport before the last plane arrives.

LORD KITCHENER'S TRAGIC FATE NEVER SOLVED

London, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Lord Kitchener's tragic fate in the North sea during the war today was officially listed under the head of mysteries not likely ever to be solved when the British government issued a white paper denying a newspaper story that Kitchener's body had been buried in Norway after the sinking of H. M. S. Hampshire.

AMERICAN LEGION AND AUXILIARY AT MANKATO

STATE CONVENTION OPENS THERE FOR THREE DAYS' SESSION

IN POINT OF ATTENDANCE MEETING EXPECTED TO BREAK ALL RECORDS

Mankato, Minn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—With more than 2,000 American Legion and auxiliary members already here, Mankato's populace was up early greeting new arrivals for the state convention of the Legion which opened here today for a three day session.

Officials believe the present convention will eclipse all other state meets of the Legion in point of attendance.

The executive committee meeting at noon in the headquarters at the Saulpaugh hotel Sunday took exception to the "spreading of propaganda tending to disrupt plans for the Paris National Legion convention in 1927."

In confirmation of this stand, the committee voted unanimous approval of the Gopher delegation's plans calling for attendance of several thousand men at the Paris meeting.

The French people are friendly toward the American soldier, reports received from representatives of the American Legion in Paris, said, according to Eddie Lindell, Minnesota department adjutant and Paris convention plans chairman.

Lindell said stories which had been broadcast saying the Paris convention might be cancelled because of the unfriendly situation in France were "without the slightest foundations."

KILLINGS LAST WEEK IN PROVINCE OF GUADALAJARA

ENRAGED CATHOLICS IN CHURCH OF JESUS STAB AND KILL POLICE CHIEF

DISCLOSED PRESENCE IN CHURCH BY SHOUTING "LONG LIVE THE CONSTITUTION"

By A. W. FOLGER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Aug. 9.—A United Press correspondent, touring cities and towns of the interior, confirmed scanty press reports received all throughout the past week regarding killings at Guadalajara, one of the strongholds of Catholicism in Mexico.

Enraged Catholics in the Church of Jesus stabbed and killed Luis Gonzales, chief of the secret service police, last Monday night. It is learned, when he disclosed his presence in the church by shouting: "Long live the Constitution."

During the night, Catholics guarded the church, demanding that all approaching it cry "Long live Christ, our King."

Those refusing to give the cry, whether men or women, were beaten with sticks and stones. Since then scenes of that nature have been a nightly occurrence about the church, with little interference offered by either the police or the military.

Troops remained in control of churches in several interior towns yesterday as a precaution against outbreaks, but the day passed without disorders, according to brief early messages.

It was reported from Pengango, in the state of Guanajuato late yesterday that citizens there were refusing to pay taxes to the city council and had appealed to officials of the League of Religious Defense for support.

A similar condition of opposition was reported from the towns of Zamora and Zapacapa in the state of Michoacan.

Newspaper reports said the Indian populations of towns in Michoacan and other states are supporting the boycott strongly, but that it will not alter the situation greatly as the buying power of the Indian groups is slight.

While the faithful of Mexico City attended prayer services of the Catholic church yesterday, the schismatic church remained practically deserted.

MISTAKES DAUGHTER FOR AN ANIMAL AND SHOTS AND KILLS HER

Pine City, Minn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Mistaking his daughter Elsie Lucille, 3, for an animal in the chicken yard of his farm near here, William Kokleppel shot and almost instantly killed the child, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

Kokleppel said he had recently found several dead chickens, indicating some animal prowling about the chicken coop at night.

Hearing a disturbance near the chicken yard Sunday morning Kokleppel took his shotgun and started to investigate, spying a small white object near the hen house at which he fired his gun.

The full charge entered the abdomen of the little girl and she died shortly afterward. It is believed she was walking in her sleep.

BRITISH SUB SINKS WHILE BEING REPAIRED

London, Aug. 9.—(UP)—The British submarine S-29 sank today in the Davenport Basin, the admiralty announced. It was feared that one warrant officer and four civilian dockyard employees had lost their lives.

Divers have located the submarine, according to announcement. It was estimated three hours would be required to raise it with the special equipment which was being sent to the basin. The S-29 lies at a depth of 25 feet.

Size and "Soul"

"The 'big business' corporations of this country never made a better move than when they concluded to make it easy for their employees to become part owners in the business in which they are employed. Among such corporations the Standard of Indiana is conspicuous.

"There is hardly an informed man in business of any kind who does not wish it were within his power to do as much for his employees as the Standard Oil Company of Indiana has done and is doing for its employees."

These paragraphs are quoted from an editorial appearing in the Atlantic News Telegraph of Atlantic, Iowa, June 8, 1926.

They indicate the trend of public opinion in regard to "big business" in general, and the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in particular.

The old feeling that large corporations are necessarily "soulless" because of their size has practically disappeared.

Greater information results in a better understanding, and this has been true, particularly in the case of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

A number of years ago this Company adopted the policy of openly and frankly discussing its problems, and publishing facts concerning its work and its organization.

Open and straightforward statements of how the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) carries on its vast business, have brought about a truer public understanding of its work, a greater appreciation of the benefits of its operation, and a realization of the true significance of its great size.

It is not "soulless" because it is big. Rather, because it is big, in every sense of the word, it has soul.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is big not alone in numbers, in wealth of resources, in the extent of its activities. These are but the outward signs of its deep inner bigness of purpose and principle, of its high ideals and far-reaching vision.

The attitude of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) towards its employees, praised in the editorial above, is but one expression of the broad working principles of the Company.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a big business. It does things in a big way. Yet its achievement is big only in proportion to the bigness of the purpose that inspires it, and the bigness of the service it renders to the thirty million people of ten Middle West states.

Size and "Soul"

"The 'big business' corporations of this country never made a better move than when they concluded to make it easy for their employees to become part owners in the business in which they are employed. Among such corporations the Standard Oil Company of Indiana is conspicuous.

"There is hardly an informed man in business of any kind who does not wish it were within his power to do as much for his employees as the Standard Oil Company of Indiana has done and is doing for its employees."

These paragraphs are quoted from an editorial appearing in the Atlantic News Telegraph of Atlantic, Iowa, June 8, 1926.

They indicate the trend of public opinion in regard to "big business" in general, and the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in particular.

The old feeling that large corporations are necessarily "soulless" because of their size has practically disappeared.

Greater information results in a better understanding, and this has been true, particularly in the case of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

A number of years ago this Company adopted the policy of openly and frankly discussing its problems, and publishing facts concerning its work and its organization.

Open and straightforward statements of how the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) carries on its vast business, have brought about a truer public understanding of its work, a greater appreciation of the benefits of its operation, and a realization of the true significance of its great size.

It is not "soulless" because it is big. Rather, because it is big, in every sense of the word, it has soul.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is big not alone in numbers, in wealth of resources, in the extent of its activities. These are but the outward signs of its deep inner bigness of purpose and principle, of its high ideals and far-reaching vision.

The attitude of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) towards its employees, praised in the editorial above, is but one expression of the broad working principles of the Company.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a big business. It does things in a big way. Yet its achievement is big only in proportion to the bigness of the purpose that inspires it, and the bigness of the service it renders to the thirty million people of ten Middle West states.

100 RESCUERS DIG TO SAVE FIVE TRAPPED MINERS

ZINC MINERS ENTOMBED 600 FEET FROM ENTRANCE OF

PROPERTY IS LOCATED IN THE
SALEM, KENTUCKY,
DISTRICT

Salem, Ky., Aug. 9.—(UP)—More than 100 rescuers dug today in the hope of rescuing five miners trapped 600 feet from the entrance of the Spar and Zinc mine near here. A diamond drill set up Saturday has penetrated through 450 feet of hard pan and rock to shale. The drill must sink 50 feet further before the shaft leading to the entombed men is reached.

The pumps are working ceaselessly to bale out water let into the shafts when a small drill struck the bottom of an underground lake. The imprisoned miners are still alive, engineers in charge of the rescue squad, reported.

Relatives, however, pointed out that efforts to communicate with the men had been unsuccessful.

HAY FEVER SUFFERERS TO MEET AT DULUTH

SNEEZERS CONVENTION TO LAST FOR FOUR DAYS, REPORTED

FRED SEARS IS "BIG SNEEZE"
OF THE ASSOCIATION

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—More than 300 invitations have been sent out to sufferers of hay fever to attend the state convention here on Aug. 20 of the Interstate Hay Fever Association, Fred Sears, president, announced. The convention is to continue for four days.

In announcing the call had been issued for the victims to attend, Sears said: "Duluth's climate is ideal for hay fever sufferers from all parts of the United States. They come for relief. Last season there were delegates from 14 states at the annual convention. This year we look for representation from at least 18 states."

The first meeting of the association, a get-together affair, will be held Aug. 20 in the convention headquarters hotel, Duluth.

Requirements for membership in the association are:
The applicant must be a victim of hay fever.

Must sneeze and cry at the sight of flowers, especially at their scent.

According to local physicians, Duluth is admirably suited as a haven of relief for the sufferers of the disease, because winds which blow in from Lake Superior are free from the pollen of flowers and weeds, which, according to best authorities, is the cause of the malady.

BANDITS GET JEWELRY VALUED AT $10,000

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Two bandits entered the home of Cornelius Bickett, millionaire steel manufacturer, in the fashionable district here, held up Mrs. Bickett and escaped with $10,000 worth of jewelry. The bandits worked so quickly and quietly that Bickett, who was ill in the house, did not know of the robbery until it was all over.

POWDER EXPLODES; 3 KILLED, SEVERAL HURT AT PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Three persons were killed and several injured in a powder explosion which wrecked the fireworks factory of Giuseppe Gregorio. Gregorio, his wife and son, Joseph, were the dead. A son, Thomas, was injured. The factory was destroyed.

Desserts for Foxes

On a fox farm near Los Angeles the animals seem to prefer fruit, especially oranges and apples. Foxes that are being raised for their pelts are fed a richer diet than the others and they are killed in December when their fur is at its best. The food given consists of bread and milk as a regular ration, with an occasional extra of eggs and raw meat with the fruit for dessert.

Fuchsia's High Place

The fuchsia is one of the gardener's most valuable plants, not only for the beauty of its flowers and graceful form of the plant but also because it is adaptable to flower beds and borders and grows with such freedom and such little care. As a house plant it is very desirable.

HIT AND RUN MOTORIST MAIMS MOTHER AND SON

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Mrs. Edward W. Entzion, West Duluth, and her eight-year-old son, were seriously injured late last night when a car in which they were riding was struck by a hit and run motorist.

The Entzion car was badly damaged.

Mrs. Entzion and the child were taken to a local hospital by police.

SLUGGED AND ROBBED IN SUPERIOR

Superior, Wis., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Two men were slugged into unconsciousness, robbed and left in the street by unknown assailants Sunday morning.

John Valequez, 25, oiler on the steamer Frank W. Hart, was picked up with severe head and body wounds and taken to a hospital.

In another part of the city police found John Lyboing, a logger, of Drummond, Wis., with severe head injuries.

Early Baseball

The first baseball "diamond" was square instead of a diamond as used now. The bases were wooden posts that stood out of the ground 4 feet. The sides were made up of from 10 to 14 players. The rule of play was, one out all out. The score was 100 tallies up. The side first scoring 100 runs was the winner.

COUNTRY BANK HELD UP AND BANDITS GET $1,500

Augusta, Mich., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Three bandits held up the Augusta State Bank here today and escaped in an automobile with between $1,000 and $1,500, after disarming Miss Erma Lamont, 22, assistant cashier, who attempted to thwart the robbery.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 9.—One of three bandits who held up the Augusta State Bank near here today was captured on the government reservation at Camp Custer, a few miles from Augusta, by John Crosby, a farmer, according to a report to police headquarters here. OUR LITTLE VISITS

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH "Little Visits" column as compiled by the rural editor, W. H. Triplett, is most interesting reading. Without any flamboyant language, but in plain, matter of fact statements, Mr. Triplett tells of his experiences in visiting the farmers of Crow Wing county.

Accurate data is given as to the number of cows milked, poultry and cattle raised, success attained in dairying, in raising alfalfa and other crops, amount of land cleared, the money made in farming, etc.

The "Little Visits" appear in their various installments in THE BRAINERD DAILY DISPATCH and then are reproduced in a full page of the weekly DISPATCH.

We wonder that our local real estate men, banks and others having farm lands and desiring customers to buy or rent their lands do not grasp the opportunity to buy copies of the weekly DISPATCH by the hundred and mail them out. They will never have a better opportunity of showing prospective customers in plain, unvarnished words the many glowing opportunities offered by Crow Wing county.

We have lands, improved and unimproved, offered at reasonable prices. We have cash markets, cash tourist trade, schools, highways, rural delivery routes, rural telephones, creameries, lakes and lowlands, hills and valleys, excellent climate—well, everything that contributes to making farming a successful occupation in our county. Right now, before increase of population in towns and countryside advance prices, is the time to buy a farm home in this county.

If the real estate men and others cannot see the advantages of spreading such effective literature on farm operations as is now being run in the BRAINERD DISPATCH, then it would pay the Chamber of Commerce to investigate the matter and see about further distribution of the paper.

True, the daily and weekly BRAINERD DISPATCH have quite a circulation, but mailing them out to friends and others interested in home seeking will strive to increase attention attached to Crow Wing county. Every new family gained benefits the county as well as the community in which they settle.

VISITING AROUND

FRED SCHILPLIN, publisher of the St. Cloud Daily Times, has an extended article in his paper on "Things I Notice When Away from Home." It covers the experiences of a recent motor trip in the north country and takes the reader from St. Cloud along Mille Lacs lake, on to Aitkin, Kimberly, Tamarack, Wright, Cromwell, Cloquet, Duluth. It shows Mr. Schilplin to have a most observant mind, recording interesting incidents and writing them in graphic language.

He notes the fact of a marker placed by the Duluth Kiwanis club. The club has given real service to the tourist by placing a bronze tablet near Duluth which tells the stranger that from this "Rest Point", 488 feet above Lake Superior, a traveler may view the western-most tip of those inland lakes that join the center of our continent to the Seven Seas. Eastward lies Lake Superior. In the foreground are the St. Louis River Valley and the busy harbor of Duluth-Superior. Immediately below is Duluth and across the harbor is Superior in Wisconsin.

Historical facts are noted by Mr. Schilplin. For instance, "on Grassy Point, just southeast, and on Spirit Island south, took place three centuries ago decisive battles that drove away the Sioux and gave temporary possession to this land to the Ojibways. Daniel de Greyson, Sieur Duluth, for whom this city is named, arrived in 1679 and crossed the Little Portage, where the harbor canal now is. At Fond du Lac beyond the steel mills in the immediate southwest, Jean Cadotte erected a fort and traded with the Indians in 1792. In 1809 John Jacob Astor founded there headquarters posts from which his fur traders ranged upper Mississippi regions and the far West. The Indians ceded this land in 1854. Superior was settled that year. The first commercial ship channel at the South was completed in 1855. Duluth was founded and Minnesota became a State in 1857. The railway came from St. Paul in 1870. The Northern Pacific reached the western ocean in 1883."

LOW WAGE BAD POLICY

FRANK W. STEERE in an interview in the Toledo Blade advances his reasons why low wages is a bad policy. "We have heard too much about increasing production, and not enough about building absorbing capacity," says Mr. Steere.

Mr. Steere is president of the Steere Engineering company of Detroit. He argues that the rational way to make business good, and have prosperity, is to build up the purchasing power of the individual. The tendency of all industry, he says, is to pay low wages and low salaries, cities boasting of low wages as an inducement for manufacturers to locate their plants there.

Mr. Steere's policy reads much as if it might be a leaf from the notebook in which Henry Ford jots down his business philosophies. In the latter gentleman's case it has had practical application, and nobody is ready to question its success. A few years ago Mr. Ford startled the manufacturers with his minimum wage of $5 per day. The fact that the minimum has been raised materially since that time is proof that the innovation brought success to the unique employer.

"The low wage fallacy," Mr. Steere says, "has done more to interfere with real prosperity than the other so-called causes put together. Industry is beginning to realize that the effort of all management should be so to organize their own particular industry that the highest possible income could be paid every employee. Not from altruistic motives, but for the purpose of increasing the purchasing power of the individual, as a group."

There is repudiation of Socialism or sentiment in this policy. It is set down as hard-boiled sense. Perhaps we are entering an era of better understanding of the economic and business relations of employer and employee; that instead of organized effort to pay the lowest possible wage there will be frank endeavor to raise the standard, to the benefit of all.

PEOPLE who never take the trouble to go to the polls to vote view with intense indignation revelations made of vote buying in the primaries of western states. Yes, sir, the man who never votes has his indignation aroused at the way the ballot box has been desecrated. And, by the way, he forgets that non-use of the voting privilege is almost as bad as mis-use.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. pictorialization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's father, disillusioned by a faithless wife, warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time; envied by all men, adored by all women. Infamous Lucretia Borgia, at the peak of her power in Rome, intrigued by his reputation, invites him to her reception. Among the guests is wealthy old Duke Varnese and his exquisite daughter, Adriana, who is coveted by Don Juan's cousin, Donati, despite the traditional enmity of the Borgias and the Varneses.

Something had seemed to tell her that that evil would come of the events of this evening; that good might also come did not occur to her. She knew only that when Don Juan was presented to her his eyes made her feel as if worms were crawling over her. As Don Juan bent over her hand she tried to mask her disgust by smiling, and Cesare Borgia, watching her, smiled also. Her father, noting it, had the same premonition that had come to Adriana. Evil would come of this night.

Lucretia Borgia paid but little attention to Adriana. Her thoughts were of Don Juan, who had not yet come. She had given orders to Mada to inform her of his arrival the instant he came and now stood impatiently tapping her foot, the jewels on her breast rising and falling with her quick, sharp breaths.

Even then Don Juan and Pedrillo

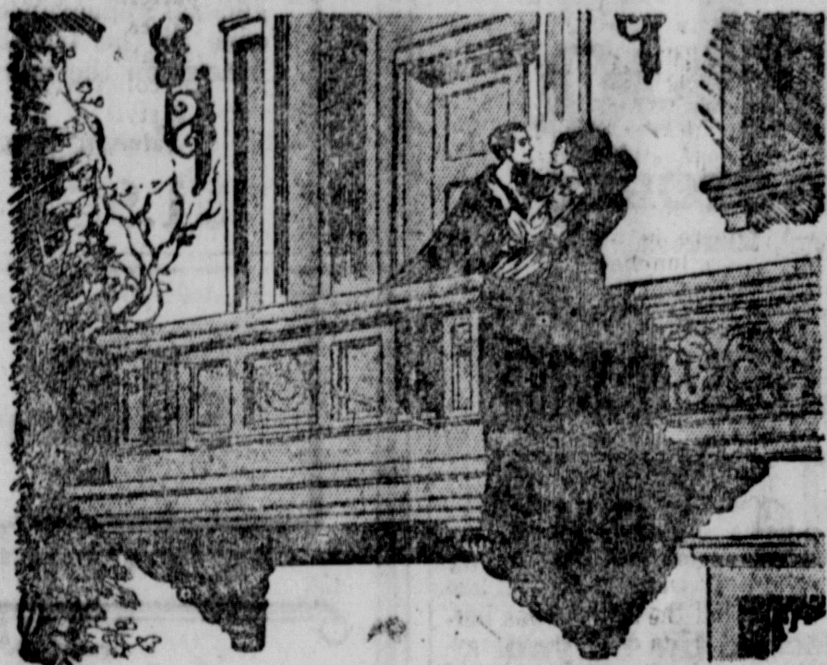

Pedrillo, frantically tramping the ground beneath the balcony, tried his best to make Juan realize the danger he was running. But his efforts failed miserably; Juan refused to pay any attention to his muffled calls of "Master! Master! I beg of you to come down at once!"

Finally Pedrillo, goaded into action by his own fears, himself turned to the wistaria and clumsily made his way up it to the balcony above. It broke and pulled away from the wall under his weight, and a shower of fragrant little purple blossoms fluttered about him. Twice he almost lost his balance. When at last he clambered over the balcony rail he was gasping for breath and trembling with fear.

"Master!" he cried, so far forgetting himself as to clutch Don Juan by the arm. "Master, the Borgia!"

Juan shook his hand off and would have turned back to the girl, ignoring him, but at that instant a noise from just behind the door's heavy hangings caught his attention. He released the girl and edged his way to a window beside the door. Just as Lucretia Borgia, her face faint with anger, threw back the hangings shielding the balcony door Juan slipped through the window and, cat-like, made his way to the middle of the room.

Lucretia swept the balcony with blazing eyes. Beneath their gaze Pedrillo covered back against the railing, the picture of guilt, and the maid bent her head. A movement behind her made just enough noise to cause Lucretia to turn, and Juan bowed to the floor before her.

He was on the balcony almost before she realized his presence.

lo were riding into the courtyard, and Juan, glancing up at the house, was standing staring at a girl, one of Lucretia's maids, who had just then come out onto a balcony about twelve feet above the ground. The heavy brocade curtains that shut off the room closed behind her, and she stood looking up at the moon.

Juan nodded appreciatively. Pedrillo, whom Mada had summoned to the door where she awaited them, the moment he dismounted, hurried back to Juan to tell him that he was to lose no time in going straight to Lucretia, but Juan commanded him to be quiet.

Pedrillo was insistent. "Quickly, Excellency. Her Highness awaits you!" he exclaimed. Juan paid no attention to him for a moment, still staring at the girl on the balcony, who was smiling down at him. Finally, in reply to Pedrillo's urging, he spoke.

"Opportunity ranks before the Borgias," he said, and swinging up on the luxuriant wistaria vine that climbed the balcony, whose trunk was as thick round as his wrist, he climbed it with the agility of his own pet monkey, and was on the balcony with his arm around the pretty maid almost before she realized his presence.

Helplessly Pedrillo shrugged his shoulders. Helplessly, too, Mada stared after Juan; then, turning quickly, ran into the house to tell her mistress what had happened. Pedrillo hesitated an instant, understanding what she meant to do, yet not knowing just how to save his master.

Meanwhile Juan was smiling down at the girl, catching up one of her hands to kiss it and exclaim as ardently as if he had never used the phrase before: "Your hand is like a little, trembling dove." And the girl lifted her eyes to his and smiled, just as the wife and mistress and sister of the Duke Margoni had lifted their eyes and smiled deep into his.

Mada had gone straight to Donati when she could not find her mistress and told him what had taken place. He in turn had gone to Lucretia and informed her of the facts, with a malicious little smile more taunting than his remark. "You are very sure of yourself, but you will believe when all Rome laughs." Her incredulity was but a poor mask for her wounded pride. Abruptly she turned away to hide both and went to her own apartments, from one of which the balcony opened.

Wanted Her to Shrink

Little Ellen heard it explained that "shrink" means "to grow smaller." A few evenings later we went to a movie and in front of Ellen's seat sat a very stout woman. After squirming around for some time in her seat, trying to look past the wide shoulders of the woman in front, Ellen leaned over and whispered: "Please, lady, do you mind shrinking a little so I can see the picture?"

OUR LITTLE VISITS

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH "Little Visits" column as compiled by the rural editor, W. H. Triplett, is most interesting reading. Without any flamboyant language, but in plain, matter of fact statements, Mr. Triplett tells of his experiences in visiting the farmers of Crow Wing county.

Accurate data is given as to the number of cows milked, poultry and cattle raised, success attained in dairying, in raising alfalfa and other crops, amount of land cleared, the money made in farming, etc.

The "Little Visits" appear in their various installments in THE BRAINERD DAILY DISPATCH and then are reproduced in a full page of the weekly DISPATCH.

We wonder that our local real estate men, banks and others having farm lands and desiring customers to buy or rent their lands do not grasp the opportunity to buy copies of the weekly DISPATCH by the hundred and mail them out. They will never have a better opportunity of showing prospective customers in plain, unvarnished words the many glowing opportunities offered by Crow Wing county.

We have lands, improved and unimproved, offered at reasonable prices. We have cash markets, cash tourist trade, schools, highways, rural delivery routes, rural telephones, creameries, lakes and lowlands, hills and valleys, excellent climate—well, everything that contributes to making farming a successful occupation in our county. Right now, before increase of population in towns and countryside advance prices, is the time to buy a farm home in this county.

If the real estate men and others cannot see the advantages of spreading such effective literature on farm operations as is now being run in the BRAINERD DISPATCH, then it would pay the Chamber of Commerce to investigate the matter and see about further distribution of the paper.

True, the daily and weekly BRAINERD DISPATCH have quite a circulation, but mailing them out to friends and others interested in home seeking will strive to increase attention attached to Crow Wing county. Every new family gained benefits the county as well as the community in which they settle.

VISITING AROUND

FRED SCHILPLIN, publisher of the St. Cloud Daily Times, has an extended article in his paper on "Things I Notice When Away from Home." It covers the experiences of a recent motor trip in the north country and takes the reader from St. Cloud along Mille Lacs lake, on to Aitkin, Kimberly, Tamarack, Wright, Cromwell, Cloquet, Duluth. It shows Mr. Schilplin to have a most observant mind, recording interesting incidents and writing them in graphic language.

He notes the fact of a marker placed by the Duluth Kiwanis club. The club has given real service to the tourist by placing a bronze tablet near Duluth which tells the stranger that from this "Rest Point", 488 feet above Lake Superior, a traveler may view the western-most tip of those inland lakes that join the center of our continent to the Seven Seas. Eastward lies Lake Superior. In the foreground are the St. Louis River Valley and the busy harbor of Duluth-Superior. Immediately below is Duluth and across the harbor is Superior in Wisconsin.

Historical facts are noted by Mr. Schilplin. For instance, "on Grassy Point, just southeast, and on Spirit Island south, took place three centuries ago decisive battles that drove away the Sioux and gave temporary possession to this land to the Ojibways. "Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Don Juan's father, disheartened by a faithless wife, warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time; envied by all men, adored by all women. Infamous Lucretia Borgia, at the peak of her power in Rome, intrigued by his reputation, invites him to her reception. Among the guests is wealthy old Duke Varnese and his exquisite daughter, Adriana, who is coveted by Borgia's cousin, Donati, despite the traditional enmity of the Borgias and the Verneses.

And the girl lifted her eyes to his and smiled, just as the wife and mistress and sister of the Duke Marconi had lifted their eyes and smiled deep into his.

Mala had gone straight to Donati when she could not find her mistress and told him what had taken place. He in turn had gone to Lucretia and informed her of the facts, with a malicious little smile more taunting than his remark.

"You are very sure of yourself, but you will believe when all Rome is in a lull," Her incredulity was but a poor mask for her wounded pride. Abruptly she turned away to hide both and went to her own apartments, from one of which the balcony opened.

"My apologies for the wretch, gracious lady," he murmured. The mockery in his voice was so subtle that she could not be sure of it. "I had hoped to improve his morals by my own example."

Lucretia did not believe him, not for an instant. She did not want to. He had proved himself a man after her own heart in that one moment. Now she was more keenly interested in him than before. She smiled a little as the frightened maid hurried into the room, and over to the door, noting the sidelong glances that Don Juan gave the girl.

Again Juan was bowing before her.

"May a simple Spaniard pay his respects to the most illustrious flower of Europe?" he asked humbly.

Again she smiled, and without replying to him went out onto the balcony. Juan followed her, and stood close behind her, looking down at her, a derisive little smile on his lips. But the instant she glanced over her shoulder at him the smile was gone, and to all appearances he was the ardent lover, his eyes, heavy lidded, gazing down into hers.

She turned back to the moonlit scene, and Juan slid a yawn. If only one woman out of all the world could be a little different from all the others! But they were alike—the bitter truth that his father had taught him held for them all! Suddenly he felt lonely, desolate.

And then, in the garden below, he saw a girl, lovely as the white moonlight and the white flowers all about her. Not a girl, an angel, the embodiment of all beauty.

Forgetting Lucretia, he bent over the balcony railing to look down at Adriana. And Lucretia, watching him, lost the languor of a moment before. Her eyes became twin points of steel, her voluptuous mouth a hard, cruel line.

Blindly she reached out for some weapon that would hurt him. Jealousy would have made her kill him in that instant had it been possible. To look at another woman like that when she, Lucretia Borgia, stood beside him!

After a moment she found her weapon in words.

"Perhaps you are not aware that Donati is our best swordsman," she said, her voice silky, suave. "He may resent your interest in his lady."

(To be continued.)

Sports Togs for Summer Outings

Interesting Outfits to Be Worn on Back-to-Nature Vacation Jaunts.

The same sort of durable costume which in other seasons has sufficed the girl who fishes and hunts, camps and canoes, may be depended upon to make its reappearance this year, no matter what the decrees of Dame Fashion in urban places. Here and there, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, there are some incidental changes—sometimes there is such a temporary aberration as the knicker vogue—but in essence the modern costumes for field and stream are not greatly different from those that have gone before.

However, the obliteration of smartness as a consideration in the open spaces should not blunt your sensibilities to the necessity for chic. Indeed, it seems a paradox that the eclipse of fashion should emphasize all the more strongly the need for daintiness.

In that connection the bifurcated costume plays a larger role than usual on today's page. The riding, hunting and hiking habits have an accompanying coat which reaches to within six inches of the knees, and if rotund mesdames must wear the knickered costume these long coats will go a long way toward preserving the never-to-be-sacrificed chic. Even when worn with this screening wrap, though, the pantalette suit may include a wrap-around skirt; it will frequently be found a welcome alternative.

The best fabrics for fishing and hunting costumes are cotton covert, corduroy, tan linen, khaki and gabardine. Of these cotton covert cloth is in the ascendancy at the moment. It is lighter than khaki and a lot more pliable, but greater than either of these, it is washable. The color need not necessarily be tan—beige, rust and hunter's green are quite as durable and far more attractive. A more elaborate fabric note is sounded by Paris in the form of English woolsens for the rough outdoor costume, but these are hardly as practical as the less expensive materials.

Jacket, Skirt, Knickers. Jacket, skirt and knickers are the typical uniform for the jaunt back to nature, and if you simply cannot resist the call of the mode, you may wear a cape. In fact, your wrap-around skirt should be a potential cape; it should be of the type that can be readily converted into that protecting garment in case of rain.

Tradition demands more colorful raiment for the canoeist. Just how many romances have had their inception in a quiet paddle on some woodland lake will never be known, but the environment requires more than the utilitarian costume suited to other phases of summer outdoor life. Our suggestion is a jumper costume with a skirt plaited sufficiently to permit that step from the wharf to the canoe. And just to demonstrate your urban possibilities, have the jumper bloused. Make the most of your single opportunity to be smart.

Be extremely careful in the selection of your shoes. Trekking along mountain passes that are uneven and damp emphasizes the two paramount needs in this type of footwear. The shoes must be large enough and the leather ought to be waterproof. Add two sizes onto your normal measurement when you purchase hiking shoes. This will allow for the heavy woolen hosiery which must be worn, and it will also allow for a possible enlarging of the feet after heavy walking.

Oil-tanned leathers will be found excellent in barring out dampness, and chrome-tanned leathers are even more satisfactory, as these, in addition to being absolutely waterproof, never crack or become brittle after the wet leather dries.

Heels, of course, must be low—almost to the vanishing point. Of course, there is a definite sacrifice of chic in this arrangement, but it is obvious that even the trimmest ankle cannot march far in a high-heeled slipper. Another necessary detail is the high shoe—avoid low slippers if you are going to negotiate any rough places.

Your hat, which should be of some soft felt, may be large, not in deference to the broad-brimmed millinery that Paris is now sponsoring, but because sweeping brims are a greater protection against the rays of the mid-day sun, particularly after a dip in the lake.

Sports Clothes Popular.

The Parisienne has completely changed her character since the war. In days gone by she left the more strenuous forms of amusement to her English and American sisters, confining herself to the art of looking charming, which she still pursues just as diligently. Now, however, in addition to appearing chic and being always delightfully dressed, she indulges in every sport and game that the most athletic Anglo-Saxon enjoys and does them remarkably well, as opponents of the unquenchable Suzanne will testify. Very likely it is due to the fact that the Parisienne has taken up sport so wholeheartedly that sports clothes have become more alluring during past seasons and have filled such an important part in the world of dress generally.

Undoubtedly it is to the riding habit that we owe the smart and conventional tailormade one sees all smart women wearing for city mornings. All Paris rides in the Bois de Boulogne during the season and for this finest of all sports the Parisienne has copied her English sisters, often going over the channel to order her habit to insure its perfectly correct fit and cut.

For town riding navy blue is one of the smartest colors for the side saddle habit—the really chic Parisienne only rides astride when she is practicing polo shots. Beige covert coatings are sometimes chosen for the summer, but they are more suitable for the country. If a lighter color is chosen it is best to have gray whipcord. It may not be startlingly original, but it always looks well and is correct for most occasions.

For riding astride beige or gray whipcord breeches and a slightly darker coat are correct, with brown or black boots, according to the color of the breeches.

Golf and Tennis Suits.

Golf and tennis, of course, have more devotees than riding. For tennis the one-piece frock is the most, indeed, the only really practical sports costume in Paris. Its full plaits insure the greatest possible freedom of movement, its sleeveless armholes give scope for stretching to reach every ball, however high, and the belt is loose enough to allow the waist to be absolutely supple. This being now almost a classical costume for tennis, one must consider how to bring the always essential changes by means of accessories. An excellent example of this differentiating accessory is found in the knitted jersey coats of different colors in light angora wool that are worn by Miss Lengien to match the swathed georgette bands with which she keeps her hair in place. Her garters are of the same color, but worn above the knee.

An overcoat to slip on after the game is essential both for golf and tennis. There was once a tradition that for tennis it must be of white blanket cloth or some similar fabric. Now the mode is more elastic, and anything sensible and plain such as ordinary beige tweed lined or trimmed with fur is considered quite as suitable for tennis as for golf.

The sweater and skirt have become as classical for golf as the Lengien frock for tennis. The only possible variation is the new suede leather blouse-coat with a stockette belt that was invented in England.

Handkerchiefs draped round the neck are still very fashionable on the golf course. They are neatly worn and do not flutter in the wind. Folding a handkerchief in four lengthwise folds and pinning it in front where it crosses over is perhaps the neatest.

Evening Shoes Fanciful

Evening shoes are richer and more fanciful than ever and their wearers are just as fanciful if poorer after buying them. The latest models are elaborately embroidered with crystal and semi-precious stones and some real diamond bracelets are seen on the newer evening slippers.

Tack Up?

"Man was made when nature was but an apprentice, but woman when she was a skillful mistress of her art."

Language Purist Had Something to Learn

"It looks like rain." "Eh! What does?" "The weather." "The weather, my dear sir, is a condition. Rain is water in the act of falling from the clouds. It is impossible that they should look alike."

"What I meant was that the sky looked like rain." "Equally impossible. The sky is the blue vault above us—the seeming arch or dome that we mistakenly call the heavens. It does not resemble falling water in the least."

"Well, then, if you're so blamed particular, it looks as if it would rain."

"As if what would rain?" "The weather, of course."

"The weather, as I said before, being a condition, cannot rain."

"The clouds then, hang you?" "Ah, here it comes. And I have wasted so much time in talking to you that I shall get wet to the skin before I can reach my street car."

"I may not know so much about rain as you do, but I've got sense enough to prepare for it and you haven't," said the other as he raised his umbrella and walked off in a huff.

Ideal Lunch Company

Winnowed Down to Two

Stephen Leacock, in his book, "Winnowed Wisdom," indulges in these philosophical remarks: "A hundred men is too many. A group of fifty would be better. As a matter of fact, a more compact luncheon of, say, twenty would be better still. Twenty men around a table can all converse, they can feel themselves in actual personal contact with one another. With twenty men, or say, fifteen men, you feel you are among a group of friends. In fact, I am not sure but that ten or eight would be a cozier crowd still. You get eight or six men together and you really exchange ideas. You get a real mental friction with six men that you can't get with a larger number. And moreover with six, or four, men sitting down like this day after day you get to know one another and in point of service and comfort there is no comparison. You can have a luncheon served for four, or three, men that is really worth eating. As a matter of fact, if it comes to that, two is a better number still. Indeed the more I think of it the better I like two—myself and a darned good waiter."

A Cow On Fifth Avenue Would Be a Curiosity

A "sale" would be as much out of place in our modern methods of merchandising and storekeeping as would a cow on Fifth Avenue in New York.

A cow on Fifth Avenue would attract a lot of curiosity but it would not provide much satisfaction to those who happened along at the time.

Where merchandising and selling methods are right, prices are as low all the time as they can possibly be made.

We prefer to give you the lowest possible prices every day instead of at intervals at so-called "sales."

You want your dollar to buy at least a hundred cents' worth all the time rather than part of the time.

We do not hold "sales." We do not change our prices from day to day. We neither "reduce" nor "raise" prices except in instances where market conditions compel us to do so. We sell for cash at low prices alike to all always.

You can always do as well here as your neighbor—no better!

THERE IS NO SATURATION POINT FOR HONEST VALUE

Build a product that the world needs, better than the world expects, and mounting sales will answer those who are constantly predicting a saturated market.

During the first six months of this year, for instance, Dodge Brothers sold 207,115 motor cars and trucks. This represents a gain of 49.3 per cent over the first six months of 1925, and continues Dodge Brothers in the enviable position of THIRD IN THE INDUSTRY.

For the three weeks ending July 17th, 23,862 motor cars and trucks were delivered to customers—an increase of 62.4 per cent over the same period last year, and impressive evidence that Dodge Brothers great sales gain is continuing through the quiet weeks of mid-summer.

There may be a saturation point for mediocrity, but honest value will always command a great and ever expanding market.

A Drastic Reduction in Frigidaire Prices!

Today, we announce a sweeping reduction in the prices of Frigidaire Electric Refrigerators.

The tremendous volume of Frigidaire sales (greater than all other electric refrigerators combined), and a vastly increased production capacity, have resulted in economies that now put electric refrigeration within the reach of every home and store.

No other electric refrigerator could offer such value. No other offers you the guarantee of General Motors, the endorsement of 200,000 users, the proven dependability, long life and economical operation of Frigidaire, nor the easy payment plan of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

Price reductions are as much as $90, including both the complete metal cabinet Frigidaire and Frigidaire units for ordinary ice-boxes. Come in today, or mail the coupon.

These drastic price reductions affect both household and commercial models of Frigidaire. Whether you want Frigidaire for your home or place of business—whether you want one of the complete metal cabinet models or a mechanical unit for installation in your present ice-box—you can take advantage of new low prices that offer greater values than ever before.

Sports Togs for Summer Outings

Interesting Outfits to Be Worn on Back-to-Nature Vacation Jaunts.

The same sort of durable costume which in other seasons has sufficed the girl who fishes and hunts, camps and canoes, may be depended upon to make its reappearance this year, no matter what the decrees of Dame Fashion in urban places. Here and there, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, there are some incidental changes—sometimes there is such a temporary aberration as the knicker vogue—but in essence the modern costumes for field and stream are not greatly different from those that have gone before.

However, the obliteration of smartness as a consideration in the open spaces should not blunt your sensibilities to the necessity for chic. Indeed, it seems a paradox that the eclipse of fashion should emphasize all the more strongly the need for daintiness.

In that connection the bifurcated costume plays a larger role than usual on today's page. The riding, hunting and hiking habits have an accompanying coat which reaches to within six inches of the knees, and if rotund mesdames must wear the knickered costume these long coats will go a long way toward preserving the never-to-be-sacrificed chic. Even when worn with this screening wrap, though, the pantalette suit may include a wrap-around skirt; it will frequently be found a welcome alternative.

The best fabrics for fishing and hunting costumes are cotton covert, corduroy, tan linen, khaki and gabardine. Of these cotton covert cloth is in the ascendancy at the moment. It is lighter than khaki and a lot more pliable, but greater than either of these, it is washable. The color need not necessarily be tan—beige, rust and hunter's green are quite as durable and far more attractive. A more elaborate fabric note is sounded by Paris in the form of English wools for the rough outdoor costume, but these are hardly as practical as the less expensive materials.

Jacket, Skirt, Knickers.

Jacket, skirt and knickers are the typical uniform for the jaunt back to nature, and if you simply cannot resist the call of the mode, you may wear a cape. In fact, your wrap-around skirt should be a potential cape; it should be of the type that can be readily converted into that protecting garment in case of rain.

Tradition demands more colorful raiment for the canoeist. Just how many romances have had their inception in a quiet paddle on some woodland lake will never be known, but the environment requires more than the utilitarian costume suited to other phases of summer outdoor life. Our suggestion is a jumper costume with a skirt plaited sufficiently to permit that step from the wharf to the canoe. And just to demonstrate your urban possibilities, have the jumper bloused. Make the most of your single opportunity to be smart.

Be extremely careful in the selection of your shoes. Trekking along mountain passes that are uneven and damp emphasizes the two paramount needs in this type of footwear. The shoes must be large enough and the leather ought to be waterproof. Add two sizes onto your normal measurement when you purchase hiking shoes. This will allow for the heavy woolen hosiery which must be worn, and it will also allow for a possible enlarging of the feet after heavy walking.

Oiled leathers will be found excellent in baring out dampness, and chrome-tanned leathers are even more satisfactory, as these, in addition to being absolutely waterproof, never crack or become brittle after the wet leather dries.

Hecis, of course, must be low—at most to the vanishing point. Of course, there is a definite sacrifice of chic in this arrangement, but it is obvious that even the trimmest ankle cannot march far in a high-heeled slipper. Another necessary detail is the high shoe—avoid low slippers if you are going to negotiate any rough places.

Your hat, which should be of some soft felt, may be large, not in deference to the broad-brimmed millinery that Paris is now sponsoring, but because sweeping brims are a greater protection against the rays of the mid-day sun, particularly after a dip in the lake.

Sports Clothes Popular.

The Parisienne has completely changed her character since the war. In days gone by she left the more strenuous forms of amusement to her English and American sisters, confining herself to the art of looking charming, which she still pursues just as diligently. Now, however, in addition to appearing chic and being always delightfully dressed, she indulges in every sport and game that the most athletic Anglo-Saxon enjoys and does them remarkably well, as opponents of the unquenchable Suzanne will testify. Very likely it is due to the fact that the Parisienne has taken up sport so wholeheartedly that sports clothes have become more alluring during past seasons and have filled such an important part in the world of dress generally.

An Interesting Jumper Frock Worn by Dorothy Sebastian, "Movie" Player.

Undoubtedly it is to the riding habit that we owe the smart and conventional tailormade one ages all smart women wearing for city mornings. All Paris rides in the Bois de Boulogne during the season and for this finest of all sports the Parisienne has copied her English sisters, often going over the channel to order her habit to insure its perfectly correct fit and cut.

For town riding navy blue is one of the smartest colors for the side saddle habit—the really chic Parisienne only rides astride when she is practicing polo shots. Beige covert coatings are sometimes chosen for the summer, but they are more suitable for the country. If a lighter color is chosen it is best to have gray whipcord. It may not be startlingly original, but it always looks well and is correct for most occasions.

For riding astride beige or gray whipcord breeches and a slightly darker coat are correct, with brown or black boots, according to the color of the breeches.

Golf and Tennis Suits.

Golf and tennis, of course, have more devotees than riding. For tennis the one-piece frock is the most, indeed, the only really practical sports costume in Paris. Its full plaits insure the greatest possible freedom of movement. Its sleeveless armholes give scope for stretching to reach every ball, however high, and the belt is loose enough to allow the waist to be absolutely supple.

This being now almost a classical costume for tennis, one must consider how to bring the always essential changes by means of accessories. An excellent example of this differentiating accessory is found in the knitted jersey coats of different colors in light angora wool that are worn by Mlle. Lenglen to match the swathed georgette bands with which she keeps her hair in place. Her garters are of the same color, but worn above the knee.

An overcoat to slip on after the game is essential both for golf and tennis. There was once a tradition that for tennis it must be of white blanket cloth or some similar fabric. Now the mode is more elastic, and anything sensible and plain such as ordinary beige tweed lined or trimmed with fur is considered quite as suitable for tennis as for golf.

The sweater and skirt have become as classical for golf as the Lenglen frock for tennis. The only possible variation is the new suede leather blouse-coat with a stockette belt that was invented in England.

Handkerchiefs draped round the neck are still very fashionable on the golf course. They are neatly worn and do not flutter in the wind. Folding a handkerchief in four lengthwise folds and pinning it in front where it crosses over is perhaps the neatest.

Evening Shoes Fanciful

Evening shoes are richer and more fanciful than ever and their wearers are just as fanciful if poorer after buying them. The latest models are elaborately embroidered with crystal and semi-precious stones and some real diamond bracelets are seen on the newer evening slippers.

Tack Up?

"Man was made when nature was but an apprentice, but woman when she was a skilful mistress of her art."

Language Purist Had Something to Learn

"It looks like rain."
"Eh! What does?"
"The weather."
"The weather, my dear sir, is a condition. Rain is water in the act of falling from the clouds. It is impossible that they should look alike."

"What I meant was that the sky looked like rain."
"Equally impossible. The sky is the blue vault above us—the seeming arch or dome that we mistakenly call the heavens. It does not resemble falling water in the least."

"Well, then, if you're so blamed particular, it looks as if it would rain."

"As if what would rain?"
"The weather, of course."

"The weather, as I said before, being a condition, cannot rain."

"The clouds then, hang you!"
"Ah, here it comes. And I have wasted so much time in talking to you that I shall get wet to the skin before I can reach my street car."

"I may not know so much about rain as you do, but I've got sense enough to prepare for it and you haven't," said the other as he raised his umbrella and walked off in a huff.

CHANNEL SWIM SEEMS A POPULAR ONE

TWO MEN FAIL IN THE ATTEMPTS MADE LAST NIGHT

COL. BERNARD FREYBERG, ENGLISH WAR HERO, MAKES NINE MILES

OWEN PERRAULT, CANADIAN, IN WATER HOUR AND HALF AND LOST BOAT

Dover, Aug. 9. (6:20 A. M.)—(UP)—Two men failed last night to accomplish the channel swim made by Gertrude Ederle.

Colonel Bernard Freyberg, V. K., English war hero, abandoned his effort after he had been in the water for about eight hours and made nine miles. Cold forced him to give up. He had left Cape Gris Nez, France, about 8:45 Sunday night, cheered on his way by Miss Ederle, Lillian Cannon and Ishak Telmy, the Egyptian. At 6 A. M. today, however, his tug returned to Dover.

Owen Perrault, a Canadian, also was forced to abandon an attempt when he became separated from his accompanying motor boat after an hour and a half in the water.

NEW YORK WOMAN TO START ON SWIM

London, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Clement Corsan (Mlle. Gade) of New York, has left Dover for Cape Gris Nez, and plans to attempt the channel swim about 9:30 P. M. today.

TRAFFIC POLICEMEN FOR ENGLISH CHANNEL

Boulogne, Aug. 9.—Traffic policemen might well be assigned to the English Channel tonight, for three and perhaps five swimmers were slated to endeavor to achieve the task of going across.

Omes Perrault of Canada, Ishak Helmy of Egypt, George Michel of France, all were planning to enter the water at Cape Gris Nez at about 9:45 P. M. to swim to England.

Mrs. Clement Corsan (Mlle. Gade), a Spanish-American, also was reported en route from England to make an attempt tonight.

It is believed a fifth swimmer might enter the water at Dover.

Never before has such a large number of swimmers selected the same day for their efforts. The swimmers probably will enter the water at intervals of 5 or 10 minutes, each accompanied by his own tug.

Weather conditions today were good and the temperature of the water was 62 degrees Fahrenheit.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT ON LOCAL COURTS TUESDAY EVENING

BRAINERD PLAYERS TO MEET TWO STRONG TEAMS FROM CROSBY-IRONTON

BRAINERD REPRESENTED BY DR. M. H. CARLSON, W. ANDERSON, F. NELSON, L. ERICSSON

The winners of the Brainerd Tennis Association tournament will meet two strong tennis teams from Crosby-Ironton on the Gregory park courts Tuesday evening at 5:30 o'clock.

Those representing Brainerd in the meet will be Dr. M. H. Carlson and Wallace Anderson on the first team and Floyd Nelson and Lawrence Ericsson on the second. The Brainerd men are very clever and accurate with the racquet and are looking forward to a stiff encounter with the range men whose line-up is as yet uncertain.

Brainerd has an exceptionally large number of tennis enthusiasts who keep the courts busy continually and as this is the first meet of its kind since the new courts have been installed a large gallery is expected. There will be no charge.

HIBBING WINS GOLF TOURNAMENT FROM BRAINERD

BRAINERD COUNTRY CLUB MEMBERS MOTORED TO MESABA RANGE

HIBBING GOLFERS WIN TOURNAMENT, SCORE WAS THREE UP

A group from the Brainerd Country club motored to Hibbing yesterday where they were the guests of the Mesaba Range Country club.

The Brainerd players were royally entertained and enjoyed playing on the beautiful course and large grass greens.

Brainerd was matched against Hibbing, the latter winning three up. Those playing from Brainerd were Joe Ryan, C. A. Ryan, B. W. Orne, Rev. Father Remmes, C. A. Russell, C. C. Davis, M. R. Smith, C. J. Wright, Billy McClenahan, Joe Ryan and B. W. Orne tied with a medal score of 89. Father Remmes coming in with an 83.

One of the most interesting matches was played between Father Remmes and Henry Bogan of Hibbing. Mr. Bogan winning the match one up at the end of eighteen holes. A return engagement will be played between Brainerd and Deerwood on the Deerwood course the first Sunday in September.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE PLANS HUGE STADIUM

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 9.—Amsterdam is planning to erect the most ornate plant that ever has been built for the comfort and convenience of Olympic athletes and spectators.

The United Press has been favored with a drawing of the stadium through the courtesy of G. van Rossem, general secretary of the Nederlandsch Olympisch Comité, which is to act as the host of the world's greatest athletes who will compete in the 1928 games.

Although the program and the dates have not been decided upon by the International Olympic Committee, the Holland officials have gone ahead with their financial arrangements and have funds sufficient to erect a plant they feel will be the best looking and the most comfortable that ever has been used for the Olympic games.

The drawing shows a most extensive and expansive layout and architectural style equalled only by the tiny stadium at Antwerp, which may have had some shortcomings but certainly lacked nothing in beauty.

Plans have been drawn for a huge stadium for the track and field games, a big pool for aquatic events, a field for polo and the equestrian games, a large field for cricket and football, a track for the cycling races, a large tennis plant and a village for the athletes. Near the plant is also a course for rowing and yachting.

In Paris the games were spread all over and all around the city but Amsterdam has decided upon having the entire program conducted practically under one roof, a great convenience alike to trainers, athletes and spectators.

The tennis plant is to be made very complete, with a center court surrounded by stands and including three courts and ten courts outside.

The completeness of the plant and the thoroughness of the plans probably will come as a surprise to some members of the international committee who wanted Holland to produce some cash in sight to guarantee that the games could be sponsored properly.

Los Angeles, two years ago, was offering all kinds of inducements to get the 1928 games, such as paying traveling expenses of all foreign teams to and from Los Angeles. This offer, of course, appealed to some of the less wealthy foreign nations but complaint was made that it flavored of professionalism and that Holland deserved at least the courtesy of an attempt to organize the games.

"You don't know those Dutch people," a prominent member of the committee said. "They don't make much noise when they're doing things but they do them and do them right."

As far as advance arrangements are concerned, the Dutch surely plan to do it right and no doubt will do it.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Wee Willie Sherdel, hurler for the St. Louis Cardinals, who won his sixth straight victory, by defeating the Brooklyn Robins, 3 to 2. It was Brooklyn's seventh successive defeat. The Cardinals went into second place by the win.

Earl Whitehill, pitching stylish ball, struck out 12 batsmen and was largely responsible for the Detroit Tigers' 8 to 3 win over the New York Yankees.

George Uhle won his 18th game for Cleveland, when the Indians won from the Washington Senators 7 to 4. Although Uhle has had a great season it was his first win over Washington.

Bill Barrett dropped Sam Hale's easy fly in the 10th inning, giving the Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 5 win from the Chicago White Sox and shoved Eddie Collins' team into the second division.

Hugh O. McQuillan slapped a coat of whitewash on the Cincinnati Reds, the Giants winning 6 to 0.

Recruit Lefty Wilts of Boston defeated Ernie Nevers of St. Louis, former grid star, in a pitching duel 4 to 2. The Red Sox got seven singles off Nevers while his teammates were kept to three.

With Milwaukee winning both games of a doubleheader and the Colonels dropping a twin bill, the race in the American association has again developed into a close battle.

Danforth worked effectively in the first game and held the Blues to six scattered hits, while the Brewers were rapping out enough hits to score four runs, the Brewers winning 4 to 1. In the second the Brewers again hit effectively and took the contest 10 to 4.

Hitting the Colonels pitchers hard the Mudhens took both games of a doubleheader 6 to 3 and 13 to 0. The largest crowd to attend a ball game at Toledo saw the home team cop games of the twin bill. Official figures give the attendance at 13,313.

Hayworth's single in the 14th over third, enabled the Senators to score the run which gave them an 8 to 7 win over the Indians.

Meade, a southpaw twirler recently purchased by the St. Paul club, pitched the Saints to a 5 to 0 win over the Millers.

BILL TILDEN, HELEN WILLS IN SETBACK

TILDEN BEATEN FEW DAYS AGO BY VINCENT RICHARDS

HELEN WILLS, RECOVERING FROM AN OPERATION, IS DEFEATED

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 9.—During the six years in which Bill Tilden proved to the satisfaction of everyone but rules-bound officials of the game that he was world champion tennis player, it had been accepted that only age placed him within striking distance of his rivals.

But recent events have shown that anything can happen in sport. Helen Wills, recovering from an operation in Paris, was defeated. Tilden was beaten only a few days ago by Vincent Richards in the first important tournament of the season and speculation has risen on whether American tennis may have a new man and woman champions. Tilden will have a chance this week to show whether the defeats he suffered this year were flukes or were the result of the inevitable slip that has a way of arriving before scheduled time.

The champion will compete in the trials that will help the United States Lawn Tennis Association select a team to defend the Davis Cup against France and Japan and in the annual east-wide matches which start the big season at Forest Hills.

In the east-wide matches he will have to meet little Billy Johnston, the only player who was good enough to give him an actual contest in his prime.

The best matches arranged by the selection committee of the association are merely consolation and encouragement for some of the good young players who are coming along. It's an odds on bet that Tilden, Johnston, Richards and Dick Williams will be the defending team and that Bud Chandler, the intercollegiate champion; Ornstun Holman, George Litt and Lewis N. White will get their reward merely in the honor of being good enough to be recognized by the association as future Davis Cup players.

The defeat of Miss Wills by Miss Ryan is to be taken seriously and unless the young champion is able to get more footwork in her game she will have to depend upon the vagary of the draw for her best help. If Miss Ryan should happen to be drawn in the opposite half against hard competition she might be defeated before the final round, but if she should be in the same half with the young Californian, she ought to win, as she did at Seabright, because Miss Wills has not recovered to the point where she can cover court as an opponent must do and has to do against the slow, choppy stroked game of Miss Ryan.

CHANNEL SWIM SEEMS A POPULAR ONE

TWO MEN FAIL IN THE ATTEMPTS MADE LAST NIGHT

COL. BERNARD FREYBERG, ENGLISH WAR HERO, MAKES NINE MILES

OWEN PERRAULT, CANADIAN, IN WATER HOUR AND HALF AND LOST BOAT

Dover, Aug. 9. (6:20 A. M.)—(UP)—Two men failed last night to accomplish the channel swim made by Gertrude Ederle.

Colonel Bernard Freyberg, V. K., English war hero, abandoned his effort after he had been in the water for about eight hours and made nine miles. Cold forced him to give up. He had left Cape Gris Nez, France, about 8:45 Sunday night, cheered on his way by Miss Ederle, Lillian Cannon and Ishak Telmy, the Egyptian. At 6 A. M. today, however, his tug returned to Dover.

Owen Perrault, a Canadian, also was forced to abandon an attempt when he became separated from his accompanying motor boat after an hour and a half in the water.

NEW YORK WOMAN TO START ON SWIM

London, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Clement Corsan (Mlle. Gade) of New York, has left Dover for Cape Gris Nez, and plans to attempt the channel swim about 9:30 P. M. today.

TRAFFIC POLICEMEN FOR ENGLISH CHANNEL

Boulogne, Aug. 9.—Traffic policemen might well be assigned to the English Channel tonight, for three and perhaps five swimmers were slated to endeavor to achieve the task of going across.

Omes Perrault of Canada, Ishak Helmy of Egypt, George Michel of France, all were planning to enter the water at Cape Gris Nez at about 9:45 P. M. to swim to England.

Mrs. Clement Corsan (Mlle. Gade) a Spanish-American, also was reported en route from England to make an attempt tonight.

It is believed a fifth swimmer might enter the water at Dover.

Never before has such a large number of swimmers selected the same day for their efforts. The swimmers probably will enter the water at intervals of 5 or 10 minutes, each accompanied by his own tug.

Weather conditions today were good and the temperature of the water was 62 degrees Fahrenheit.

The winners of the Brainerd Tennis Association tournament will meet two strong tennis teams from Crosby-Ironton on the Gregory park courts Tuesday evening at 5:30 o'clock.

Those representing Brainerd in the meet will be Dr. M. H. Carlson and Wallace Anderson on the first team and Floyd Nelson and Lawrence Ericsson on the second. The Brainerd men are very clever and accurate with the racquet and are looking forward to a stiff encounter with the range men whose line-up is as yet uncertain.

Brainerd has an exceptionally large number of tennis enthusiasts who keep the courts busy continually and as this is the first meet of its kind since the new courts have been installed a large gallery is expected. There will be no charge.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE PLANS HUGE STADIUM

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 9.—Amsterdam is planning to erect the most ornate plant that ever has been built for the comfort and convenience of Olympic athletes and spectators.

The United Press has been favored with a drawing of the stadium through the courtesy of G. van Rossem, general secretary of the Nederlandsch Olympisch Comité, which is to act as the host of the world's greatest athletes who will compete in the 1928 games.

Although the program and the dates have not been decided upon by the International Olympic Committee, the Holland officials have gone ahead with their financial arrangements and have funds sufficient to erect a plant they feel will be the best looking and the most comfortable that ever has been used for the Olympic games.

The drawing shows a most extensive and expansive layout and architectural style equalled only by the tiny stadium at Antwerp, which may have had some shortcomings but certainly lacked nothing in beauty.

Plans have been drawn for a huge stadium for the track and field games, a big pool for aquatic events, a field for polo and the equestrian games, a large field for cricket and football, a track for the cycling races, a large tennis plant and a village for the athletes. Near the plant is also a course for rowing and yachting.

In Paris the games were spread all over and all around the city but Amsterdam has decided upon having the entire program conducted practically under one roof, a great convenience alike to trainers, athletes and spectators.

The tennis plant is to be made very complete, with a center court surrounded by stands and including three courts and ten courts outside.

The completeness of the plant and the thoroughness of the plans probably will come as a surprise to some members of the international committee who wanted Holland to produce some cash in sight to guarantee that the games could be sponsored properly.

Los Angeles, two years ago, was offering all kinds of inducements to get the 1928 games, such as paying traveling expenses of all foreign teams to and from Los Angeles. This offer, of course, appealed to some of the less wealthy foreign nations but complaint was made that it flavored of professionalism and that Holland deserved at least the courtesy of an attempt to organize the games.

"You don't know those Dutch people," a prominent member of the committee said. "They don't make much noise when they're doing things but they do them and do them right."

As far as advance arrangements are concerned, the Dutch surely plan to do it right and no doubt will do it.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Wee Willie Sherdel, hurler for the St. Louis Cardinals, who won his sixth straight victory, by defeating the Brooklyn Robins, 3 to 2. It was Brooklyn's seventh successive defeat. The Cardinals went into second place by the win.

Earl Whitehill, pitching stylish ball, struck out 12 batsmen and was largely responsible for the Detroit Tigers' 8 to 3 win over the New York Yankees.

George Uhle won his 18th game for Cleveland, when the Indians won from the Washington Senators 7 to 4. Although Uhle has had a great season it was his first win over Washington.

Bill Barrett dropped Sam Hale's easy fly in the 10th inning, giving the Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 5 win from the Chicago White Sox and shoved Eddie Collins' team into the second division.

Hugh O. McQuillan slapped a coat of whitewash on the Cincinnati Reds, the Giants winning 6 to 0.

Recruit Lefty Wittse of Boston defeated Ernie Nevers of St. Louis, former grid star, in a pitching duel 4 to 2. The Red Sox got seven singles off Nevers while his teammates were kept to three.

With Milwaukee winning both games of a doubleheader and the Colonels dropping a twin bill, the race in the American association has again developed into a close battle.

Danforth worked effectively in the first game and held the Blues to six scattered hits, while the Brewers were rapping out enough hits to score four runs, the Brewers winning 4 to 1. In the second the Brewers again hit effectively and took the contest 10 to 4.

Hitting the Colonels pitchers hard the Mudhens took both games of a doubleheader 6 to 3 and 13 to 0. The largest crowd to attend a ball game at Toledo saw the home team cop games of the twin bill. Official figures give the attendance at 13,313.

Hayworth's single in the 14th over third, enabled the Senators to score the run which gave them an 8 to 7 win over the Indians.

Mende, a southpaw twirler recently purchased by the St. Paul club, pitched the Saints to a 5 to 0 win over the Millers.

SNAKE CHARMER IN WEIRD STORY

One of Carnival Company Employees
Sends Hurry Up Call to Police

HAD TENT AT TOURIST PARK

Claimed She Was Attacked Twice by
Two Men in Touring Car

Early yesterday morning the police received a hurry up call to the tourist camp where Iva Voorhees, snake charmer at the Blue Ribbon shows which completed a week's run in Brainerd told a weird story of being attacked twice by two men in a touring car while sleeping in her tent at the park.

As Iva Voorhees was unable to give any description of the men she alleged attacked her or any direct motive for their act, the police are inclined to treat the incident as a publicity stunt on the part of the lady.

In her story to the police Iva Voorhees stated that about 1 o'clock as she was sleeping in her tent she was awakened by two men who grabbed her, and bound and gagged her. By groaning she was able to attract the attention of the members of the athletic show who were sleeping in a tent nearby who released her.

Another attack upon her followed the first one about 4 a. m. when the two men entered the tent, gagged her with a silk stocking, tied her legs, and placed a heavy boulder on her chest.

Outside the alleged attack, Iva Voorhees stated she was unhurt. She believes that the first attack made upon her was to get her out of the way while the two men stole the money from the athletic show from the wrestlers in the tent while she claims that the second attack was made to possibly kill her and get her out of the way as the attackers believed she had recognized them.

No attempt was made by the supposed intruders to steal the money from the athletic tent.

Iva Voorhees is 29 years old, married with a child of four years.

MYSTERY IN THE DEATH OF WOMAN

HUSBAND OF CHICAGO LADY BELIEVES SHE RESISTED ATTACK

Chicago, Aug. 8.—(U.P.)—Search for a man, who left Mrs. Beatrice Weeks, 28, pretty mother of three children, dead at a local hospital saying he would be "right back as soon as I tell her mother," was under way here today.

The man, who was well dressed, said the woman had fainted in his arms. Death was due to a heart attack, according to coroner's physicians. The woman's husband said he believed his wife was resisting an attack when she collapsed.

Heredit

"Be careful, precious," said the fond mother to her three-year-old daughter. "Remember that is mamma's best diamond pendant, and that you're to take it straight to the safe deposit company. And just a moment, darling! Here is mamma's new pearl necklace. Take that, too. And be sure to hold them both tight in your little paws, and to hit any one who tries to take them from you with this little toy sword of your brother's."

It was but the influence of heredity asserting itself. She came, that mother, of an old family of bankers, shrewd men of business who entrusted payroll cash and negotiable securities to unarmed office boys and rheumatic watchmen.—Kansas City Times.

Echoes of the Truth

Golf is a game of skill and patience. At the same time it is also a great strain on veracity.

Four men were playing a match the other day on a course in which the ninth hole lay over a deep ravine.

Three of them went to the ravine, but by a stroke of fortune the fourth cleared it and found himself almost on the green. The others inspected their respective lies, and two of them decided to give up the hole. The third said he would go down and play out, and he did.

"How many strokes?" queried the others when he reappeared.

"Three," he answered shortly. "The others you heard were echoes."

America's First Play

The American theater established itself as an independent institution in 1787 when a play by an American, born and bred in the colonies, was put on the stage of the John Street theater in New York. This, the first native comedy ever put professionally before the footlights of the new world, was "The Contrast." The author, Royall C. Tyler, found his inspiration, so the historians of drama tell us—and it is pretty obvious anyway—in a view of Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "School for Scandal," given at this same John Street theater.—Donald Freeman, in Vanity Fair.

Good Silk Stockings

Deserve Good Care

We often wonder if women who get the most wear out of silk stockings ever tell their friends how they get such wonderful wear out of goods stockings, as we have customers tell us over and over about the wonderful wearing qualities of our hose. Here are a few things to remember.

The Correct Way to Put On Silk Hose

Put your closed hand into the leg of the stocking and take hold of the heel. Then draw the heel through, turning the stocking inside out, and forming a pocket of the toe and sole. Place your foot into this pocket and draw the stocking over the instep. This method eliminates the leg of the stocking coming in contact with the toe nails and will prevent many pulled threads and runs caused by the stocking being drawn on in other ways.

Watch Out

Look out for a ragged edge on a skirt hem, trimming or buttons on the dress, rough heels, when crossing the feet, or fancy buckles on the shoes, at the same time. Rough edges of furniture, especially in places of amusement, cause great damage.

We will have a few more suggestions tomorrow evening.

Such good stocks as Phoenix, Gotham Gold Stripe, Cadet, rarely give cause for complaint as they are pure silk hose.

Buying activities were largely confined to industrial issues though rails came in for substantial support at times. The market closed higher.

LEGAL REFORM IS ADVOCATED

UNIFORM STATE LAWS ESPOUS- ED BY SOUTH DAKOTA LAWYERS

Sylvan Lake, S. D., Aug. 9.—(UP) Legal reform and uniform state laws will be advocated here tomorrow when more than 100 South Dakota lawyers meet in the 27th annual convention of the State Bar Association.

The meetings will continue for three days.

Thomas Francis Howe, corporation lawyer, Chicago, will deliver an address Wednesday on "The Tendency Toward Commercialization in the Practice of Law."

Koch's Great Discovery

The first physician to discover that tuberculosis diseases were caused by the existence of bacilli was Dr. Robert Koch, a German physician and bacteriologist. In 1880 he startled the world by announcing that he had found a remedy for the "white plague," but it was found that his "lymph" in its effect on the human body was worse than the disease.

Mogul Fighter Saw No Shame in Flight

The reader of Babar's Memoirs will be struck by the frequency with which Babar and his Moguls ran away.

Don't forget that they were Mongols, whose first instinct when surprised or beaten in the field, was to take to horse, put distance between themselves and the swords of their enemies and then stop and find out what it was all about.

It was all very different from the battles of medieval Europe, when a reigning monarch might take the field and remain by his standard without mixing up very much in the fighting, and surrendering if matters went against him. He would be then "chivalrously entreated," entertained and probably ransomed. Then he could start in and fight another battle.

Babar couldn't. If he was captured that would be the end of him. He wasn't captured, somehow or other, and so we have the memoirs.

The fact is that Babar tells the simple truth. He laughs at himself when he has to run and he admits quite unaffectedly that he was scared stiff when he thought he was about to die. When he was carried away by battle fever and tried to make a stand with a hundred warriors against a couple of thousand, he takes pains to point out what a fool he was.

In his greatest battle, when some 12,000 Moguls faced 100,000 Rajputs, he confesses that his men were in a blue funk, and more than half confesses that he thought he would be worsted. As a matter of fact he won a remarkable victory by his generalship. All he says is that God made conquerors instead of martyrs of the Moguls.

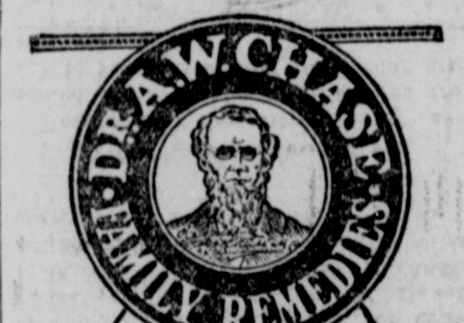

Babar was incurably courageous. He gambled incessantly with his life—hunted rhinoceros and tiger on horseback with his bow and sword, swam across every river he came upon, spent nights without shelter on the Hindu kush in midwinter, climbed the ice cliffs of the Karakum. He led his men into a hundred-odd fights, had at least four horses shot under him, was wounded five or six times, poisoned once and given up for dead another time.—Adventure Magazine.

Johnny Hines in "The Brown Derby"

And now everybody ought to be satisfied. For some time motion picture producers have been telling us that the comedy is the thing, that the screen was made for laughter, and so on, and so on. Johnny Hines has kept the promise for all of them. His new First National picture, "The Brown Derby," is now showing at the Lyceum Theatre.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. H. P. Dunn, Johnson's Pharmacy and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

Here It Is Again

A nervous passenger on the first day of the voyage asked the captain what would be the result if the steamer should strike an iceberg while it was plunging through the fog. "The iceberg would move right along, madam," the captain replied courteously, "just as if nothing had happened." And the old lady was greatly relieved.—London Tit-Bits.

Law's Slow Process

A fortune of $150,000 which has been lying in chancery in England for almost a century, has just been divided between two brothers and a sister. It was in 1839 that this money passed into the care of chancery. Attempts had previously been made to recover it, but it is only now that a claim has been established.

COTTON PRICES DROP SHARPLY

New York, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Cotton prices dropped sharply on issuance of the government report. The government indicated yield of 15,621,000 bales was much larger than had been looked for. October slumped to 1650, off 78 points; Dec. 1646, off 76; Jan. 1647, off 90, and March 1650, off 77.

GENERAL MOTORS IN UPTURN

New York, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Fresh record highs in General Motors, United States Steel and Atchafalva were the outstanding features of the opening session of the week. With these stocks recognized as the most representative issues of their classes coming to unprecedented prices the whole market was stimulated to extreme buoyancy.

Buying orders came into the street in heavy volume from all parts of the country and the trading was in many respects the healthiest the financial district has ever witnessed. Buying activities were largely confined to industrial issues though rails came in for substantial support at times.

The market closed higher.

LEGAL REFORM IS ADVOCATED

UNIFORM STATE LAWS ESPOUS- ED BY SOUTH DAKOTA LAWYERS

Sylvan Lake, S. D., Aug. 9.—(UP) Legal reform and uniform state laws will be advocated here tomorrow when more than 100 South Dakota lawyers meet in the 27th annual convention of the State Bar Association.

The meetings will continue for three days. "The Spirit of the West" will furnish the subject matter for an address by Badger Clark, poet, at the banquet tomorrow night.

Thomas Francis Howe, corporation lawyer, Chicago, will deliver an address Wednesday on "The Tendency Toward Commercialization in the Practice of Law."

Koch's Great Discovery

The first physician to discover that tuberculosis diseases were caused by the existence of bacilli was Dr. Robert Koch, a German physician and bacteriologist. In 1880 he startled the world by announcing that he had found a remedy for the "white plague," but it was found that his "lymph" in its effect on the human body was worse than the disease.

Mogul Fighter Saw

No Shame in Flight

The reader of Babar's Memoirs will be struck by the frequency with which Babar and his Moguls ran away.

Don't forget that they were Moguls, whose first instinct when surprised or beaten in the field, was to take to horse, put distance between themselves and the swords of their enemies and then stop and find out what it was all about.

It was all very different from the battles of medieval Europe, when a reigning monarch might take the field and remain by his standard without mixing up very much in the fighting, and surrendering if matters went against him. He would be then "chivalrously entreated," entertained and probably ransomed. Then he could start in and fight another battle.

Babar couldn't. If he was captured that would be the end of him. He wasn't captured, somehow or other, and so we have the memoirs.

The fact is that Babar tells the simple truth. He laughs at himself when he has to run and he admits quite unaffectedly that he was scared stiff when he thought he was about to die. When he was carried away by battle fever and tried to make a stand with a hundred warriors against a couple of thousand, he takes pains to point out what a fool he was.

In his greatest battle, when some 12,000 Moguls faced 100,000 Rajputs, he confesses that his men were in a blue funk, and more than half confessed that he thought he would be worsted. As a matter of fact he won a remarkable victory by his generalship. All he says is that God made conquerors instead of martyrs of the Moguls.

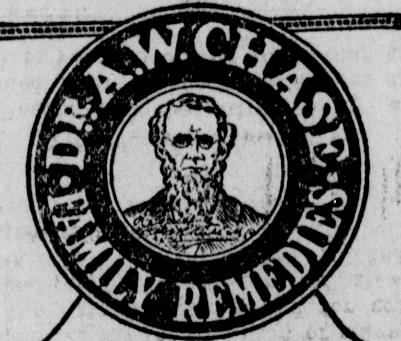

Babar was incurably courageous. He gambled incessantly with his life—hunted rhinoceros and tiger on horseback with his bow and sword, swam across every river he came upon, spent nights without shelter on the Hindu kush in midwinter, climbed the ice cliffs of the Karatagh. He led his men into a hundred-odd fights, had at least four horses shot under him, was wounded five or six times, poisoned once and given up for dead another time.—Adventure Magazine.

Paid for Slaves Freed

The act for the abolition of slavery in the British colonies and for compensation to the owners of slaves ($100,000,000) was passed in 1833. All slaves in the British colonies were emancipated August 1, 1834.

Johnny Hines in "The Brown Derby"

And now everybody ought to be satisfied. For some time motion picture producers have been telling us that the comedy is the thing, that the screen was made for laughter, and so on, and so on. Johnny Hines has kept the promise for all of them. His new First National picture, "The Brown Derby," is now showing at the Lyceum Theatre.

Company of 2,000 Figure in Cast of "The Greater Glory"

About 2,000 persons figure in the cast of "The Greater Glory," June Mathis' colossal screen epic, which is showing at the Lyceum Theatre on Tues. and Wednesday. The story is a poignant drama of Vienna before, during and after the war. Vienna was once the gayest capital of Europe except, perhaps, Paris.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. H. P. Dunn, Johnson's Pharmacy and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

Here It Is Again

A nervous passenger on the first day of the voyage asked the captain what would be the result if the steamer should strike an iceberg while it was plunging through the fog. "The iceberg would move right along, madam," the captain replied courteously, "just as if nothing had happened." And the old lady was greatly relieved.—London Tit-Bits.

Law's Slow Process

A fortune of $150,000 which has been lying in chancery in England for almost a century, has just been divided between two brothers and a sister. It was in 1839 that this money passed into the care of chancery. Attempts had previously been made to recover it, but it is only now that a claim has been established.
